NIPAM AWARDED AMDIN VP ROLE

The African Management Development Institutes' Network (AMDIN) is a network of Management Development Institutes (MDIs), Public Sector Training Institutes (PSTIs) and other Public Administration Institutions (PAIs) based in Africa. The network was launched in 2005, and completed all legal formalities regarding its establishment in 2007. AMDIN enhances the voice of MDI's at the global, continental and sub-regional level by lobbying and advocating continental structures, donors and other stakeholders on the critical challenges and opportunities faced by MDI's.

NIPAM has been a member of AMDIN since its inception and participated in its activities such as the Khaedu Project and the AU Public Service Charter. Its NIPAM's prior involvement in AMDIN's past endeavours that created the bridge that paved the way for NIPAM's Maria N. Nangolo's election as ADMIN Vice President.

This is befitting as she's a highly accomplished, decisive, and results-driven leader with more than 22+ years of executive management experience at the international, regional and national levels. She is a strategic leader who administers various complex functions with integrity, diplomacy, respect for human rights and diversity.

One of the mechanisms employed by AMDIN is to address the training of MDI's, including trainers, curriculum development experts, researchers, consultants, policy advisors, training logistics managers and administrators, as well as the leadership of these institutions.

Ms. Maria N. Nangolo
-AMDIN Vice-President

AMDIN members include Kenya School of Government (KSG), Lesotho Institute for Public Administration and Management (LIPAM), Management Development Institute (MDI-Gambia), National School of Government (NSG) and Namibian Institute of Public Administration (NIPAM) to name a few.
